Thought that many of you might enjoy this.

We have had bees in several of our trees for many years. When Beryl's eye went over us it was enough to break a branch that was completely full of bee hives!

I called a beekeeper out to take the bees away. He came out the same day the tree guys were here helping. Terrible timing as they didn't get to finish the job but the bee "wrangler" was able to do his thing. He got what he could and came back later that evening around 1030pm to get the queen and the rest of her workers. So that is why she is in a plastic, clear clip!

When the beekeeper came back her brought us some amazing honey from our hive! Some of the best honey I've ever had 🍯🐝

I grew up in East Texas where my friends were my friends regardless of race. That's just how we were back then. I wasn't like most of my peers who went to college and after graduating moved to a different city or state to live. Every 4 years I had to pack up my family and move to a different state and often leave them behind as I traveled abroad while serving in the USN. I have literally traveled the world. In doing that I had to basically start over with new friends and a new duty station (job) live in an unfamiliar community and adapt to new people. I did that for 20 years. After retiring from the Navy my family and I decided to settle in the Pensacola, FL area. So we bought a house in the small community of Pace. It was an area where there wasn't a lot of people who looked like me, and needless to say it was my first time experiencing some stuff....if you know what I mean. However, overall wasn't a bad place to live, if you know how to handle your shit. I've also worked in sales after retiring from the military where I was 1 of a few in the entire company and was treated with dignity, respect and as a true professional. There I worked with some great people and some whom I wouldn't mind taking behind a woodshed. Lol I said all that to say this. I KNOW PEOPLE! I have always been very observant of PEOPLE. I've been around ALL cultures, and different walks of life and I know you! So when you act a certain way, sound a certain way and look a certain way....you are who I think you are! All that slick talk and shit...yep done heard that before. You can't fool me. So I am at an age now that I don't need those types of people around me. Keep on showing me the real you! Holla!

When I say I'm a Christian, I'm not saying that I'm a "perfect church girl." I'm honestly just a broken mess who found Jesus. Anything good in me, is God. And anything broken in me, God is actively working on.

The past 4 months have been rough. It's hard as mother to see your child hurting and crying out for help and it seems as if help wasn't coming soon enough. Laboring in prayer, sleepless nights, many tears shed, constantly asking God to calm my nerves and settle my spirit. But, I held on to my faith and stood on Gods word. I even remember asking God to just let me catch my breath. I started to grow weary and I said... God, "You said that you are a very present HELP and my child needs some HELP" To sum it all up, GOD DID IT!! 🙏 Things are still progressing for the better and the weight has been lifted!!

I'm thankful that God carved out some time for me this weekend to just be.. This weekend was personal for me and I'm thankful for the refreshing. I was able to go release, relax, and refuel. And before leaving this morning, God said "IT IS WELL"!!!! 🙏

Finally, the sequel to “Lobos, Blue Devils, and Mustangs” has arrived! Continuing from the that previous novel, “The MisAdventures of Ced E.!” follows our hero, Ced E., a week removed from his high school graduation, through four years of college at SFASU and Kilgore Jr. College. Taking place in the late 1980’s, when there were no cellphones, no DVDs, and no internet or websites, the college life was totally different from what it’s like today. But when you’re leaving your home and being on your own for the very first time, no matter what the time period is, every day is an adventure, or “MisAdventure” within itself. Ced E.’s path to manhood was VERY interesting, to say the VERY least, a psychological and winding path down the road to hopefully success...a road which encountered a lot of surprises along the way. Will Ced E. reach his goal of graduating (in his right mind) with his degree or will he stumble off the road in failure and misery?

All My 86 Lobos

This comic strip is based on the soap opera, "All My Children", and contains characters which may or may not be familiar to many of you.

The setting is the fictional town of Lashley, Texas, where a group of characters seek to take over and run the community. Let's meet some more of these characters right now:

The place: Lashley. Not a real big city but big enough to have its own share of problems-

And there's about to be another problem on the horizon for this man putting gas in his car-

Enter two members of the Round Table: Brenda and Larita!
