The relationship I have with my oldest grandson is untouchable! We have an amazing bond and whats understood never needs explaining. Today I'm screaming from Longview to Grand Prairie to the one who stole my heart and wailer and gave me the title of "Nanna" Happy Birthday My "Spanky" Mr. Jeremiah Keon'tre Murphy! Love you beyond life!!

The Business Council for the Arts and Northpark Mall are sponsoring a Visual Arts Competition and Showcase for the next two weeks displaying the amateur and professional works of artists that are employees of companies across DFW. Go take a look and enjoy. You might find yourself saying, "Hey, I know that guy." Fun time Thursday evening at the artists kickoff reception.

It was one of those visit the other side of the planet days... I got up this morning Sunday September the 8th. Finished packing and my wife took Alec and I to the airport to catch a plane to Washington DC. We had just about an hour till be boarded another plane for Rome... 8 mostly sleepless hours later we lander in Rome. We made it through customs and collected our bags...(it was now after 9:00 am on Monday... after a bit of a delay because our bus driver " Found Traffic " in rou... See more

Mommy had to go to Tallulah, so daddy is in charge of the babies. Got a pork tenderloin in the oven, butter beans on the stove, and about to start the cornbread made with beef tallow instead of butter. Comfort food for a bad Monday.

Ok FB. I'm finally going to let everyone know! We moved back to Longview. I want to personally thank my sister Genise Cooley Maberry and brother-in-law Michael for all their help getting the old floors ripped out the new floors laid. They helped us in 105° temps, never complained and got it all done in like 5 days. We couldn't have done it without them. Also thanks to Ethan Minor and April Burrey for their help. But most of all my man Jessie Reese for not giving up on finding our new home. He was determined to get us back home and determined to get me my pool. He spoils me so. I love him so much!
